Looking for the Clouds, contemporary photography in times of conflict

The platform’s objective was and is to network and strengthen European photography; for example, by producing collaboratively curated photography exhibitions. This year’s joint exhibition “Looking for the Clouds, contemporary photography in times of conflict” will be presented in all partner cities Athens, Berlin, Bratislava, Budapest, Ljubljana, Luxembourg Paris and Vienna as part of their concurrent months of photography.

David Burnett, The Presidents: From JFK to Obama

Exhibition: 19 October - 12 November 2016

From iconic statesmen such as JFK, to the downfall of Richard Nixon, and the significance of America’s election of Barack Obama, leading American photojournalist David Burnett has captured moments of history that reverberated around the world. Spanning five decades, Burnett’s images are markers of time and provide a fascinating, up-close and unique perspective.

Eyes on – Month of Photography Vienna 2016

Events: 25 October – 30 November 2016

In November 2014 Eyes On – Month of Photography Vienna takes place for the sixth time. The wide spectrum of artistic photography is presented biennial in November in museums and art venues of the city, in galleries, off-spaces and temporary art spaces. As a founding member of the “European Month of Photography” (EMOP) Vienna cooperates with the festivals in Athens, Berlin, Bratislava, Budapest, Ljubljana, Luxembourg, and Paris.

Filmstills. Photography between Advertising Art and the Cinema

Exhibition: 4 November 2016 – 26 February 2017

The spotlight is turned on this hybrid genre for the first time in a comprehensive exhibition of 150 film stills taken between 1910 and the 1970s, thus simultaneously shedding light on a cross-section of various historical schools of photography and filmmaking such as Pictorialism, Expressionism, and Neo-Realism. Using images by photographers such as Deborah Imogen Beer, Angelo Novi, Pierluigi Praturlon and Karl Struss, three aspects of film stills as an intermedia phenomenon will be given particular attention: the interfaces between photography and film with their breaks and links, the function of stills as such, and these stills’ independent artistic value. In cooperation with the Austrian Film Museum.

Danila Tkachenko: Restricted Areas

Exhibition: 5 November – 31 January 2017

Danila Tkachenko traveled several states of the former Soviet Union in search of abandoned and derelict industrial structures. The works resulting from that trip stage the relics as abstract objects due to the light and weather conditions. Restricted Areas won last year’s edition of the European Publishers Award for Photography, comprising the simultaneous book release of his series by five European publishing houses. The exhibition is part of EYES ON - Month of Photography Vienna.

The Alfred Fried Photography Award 2016 winner: Helena Schätzle for "Devoted to Life"
For the fourth time the Austrian parliament hosted the award ceremony of the international photo competition for the best peace image of the year. The award is named after Austrian Nobel Peace Prize Laureate Alfred Fried, with the main prize worth 10 000 euros. It went to German photographer Helena Schätzle for "Devoted to Life", a portrait series of holocaust survivors in Israel. The international jury praised Schätzle's sensitive approach to "capture late moments of consolation, tenderness and intimacy in the lives of those who have been stalked by a horrific history, late moments of happiness in a traumatized life after survival".

Visa d’or Feature Award to Peter Bauza: Copacabana Palace
The book was awarded at the prestigious Visa d’or Feature Award at Visa pour l’Image on 2 September 2016.
The 2016 Arthus-Bertrand Visa d’or awards go to the best reports published between September 2015 and August 2016. For the Visa d’or awards for feature reporting, picture editors and assistant picture editors make a selection from all reports seen over the past year (both published and unpublished), choosing nominees per category. A second jury meets in Perpignan to choose the final winners.

Diversity of Modernity. Part I of the Art Exchange between FOTOGALERIE WIEN and the ORGANHAUS in Chongqing, China
Exhibition: 11 October – 12 November 2016
This exhibition is the first part of an art exchange between the Fotogalerie Wien and the Organhaus in Chongqing, China. Organhaus is an autonomous institution organised and run by artists and curators with the aim of encouraging contemporary Chinese art and organizing international exchanges and exhibition projects. It is located in Chongqing, a city in South-west China and it has at its disposal a large exhibition space and ateliers for residencies. Two artists, Yang Yuanuyuan and Zhao Tianji, will develop location specific projects for the Vienna show. Part II of the exhibition exchange will take place in 2017 at the Organhaus with Austrian artists.

Exhibition: 28 January – 23 April 2017
This is the first presentation of Elger Esser’s work in Austria. The focus of the exhibition is on the landscape – the main issue of his substantial work. With his classical compositions and use of historic photo techniques, the former Becher student is considered to follow in the tradition of baroque landscape painters and historic photographers of the late 19th century.

The beginning of everything. About galaxies, quarks and collisions

Exhibition: 19 October 2016 – 1 May 2017

What does the universe consist of? Where does the universe end? How many dimensions are there in the universe? What is the universe expanding into? These and similar questions have bothered humans for centuries and still bring us to the limits not only of our knowledge but also of our imagination. "The beginning of everything" presents answers to at least part of these questions by taking visitors for a journey more than 13 billion years back into the past, to the start of the universe, and by communicating most recent scientific knowledge of particle physics and cosmology in a readily comprehensible manner. In addition, artists offer a contrasting approach to this complex topic from different visual, optical and acoustic angles and perspectives.

Video, light and sound installations created by Austrian artists – e.g. Brigitte Kowanz, Eva Schlegel or Manfred Wakolbinger among others - offer a completely different approach to the infinity of the universe and the gigantic dimensions of spacetime. Several pieces of art created by a scientist working at CERN as well as by an artist in residence at CERN (Michael Hoch, Chris Henschke) have been inspired by the CMS experiment, thus representing a direct link between science and art. The exhibition is a collaboration between the NHM Vienna and the Institute of High Energy Physics (HEPHY) of the Austrian Academy of Sciences.

Disassembled Images – Contemporary Art after Allan Sekula

Conference: 2 – 4 March 2017

This conference takes the US artist, theoretician, critic, teacher and poet Allan Sekula’s project Ship of Fools / The Dockers’ Museum (2010-2013) as its point of departure. At the very end of his life Sekula produced this unfinished, multifaceted and variably installable work of art, which contains ca. 1250 objects. By taking as subject dock workers and seafarers, Sekula wished to pay tribute to all the joined, past efforts of human labor now irretrievably lost in history—a struggle he identifies as “Sisyphean.” In doing so, Sekula provides a message of hope: his last work contributes to imagining possible forms of solidarity in a globalized economy confronted ever-more with its own limitations.

The Intimate World of Josef Sudek

Exhibition: 28 October 2016 – 19 March 2017

This exhibition is the first of this scale to revisit the life and work of Josef Sudek (Kolin, 1896 – Prague, 1976) within its sociogeographical and historical context: Prague during the first half of the twentieth century, at a time when the Czech capital was a veritable hub of artistic activity. On show is a selection of 130 works spanning the totality of Sudek’s career, from 1920 to 1976, and allows the public to examine the extent to which his photography was a reflection of his personal relationship to the surrounding world.

4th International Conference of Photography and Theory: Photography and the Everyday

Conference: 2 – 4 December 2016

This year’s topic, ‘Photography and the Everyday’ investigates the current meanings, distribution, materiality, impact, and effect of vernacular photography (or else everyday photography) in relation to our economy of images. Furthermore, it aims to examine the ways vernacular photography influences, shapes and challenges memory, individual and collective identities, historical and other narratives, the social fabric, issues of authorship and authenticity, privacy and public life.

The Rebellious Image. Kreuzberg’s „Werkstatt für Photographie“ and the Young Folkwang Scene in the 1980s
Exhibition: 9 December 2016 – 19 February 2017
In the early 1980s, a rebellious spirit prevailed in German photography. One of the pivotal figures behind this new direction was Michael Schmidt, who, in 1976, founded the legendary ‘Photography Workshop’ at the Kreuzberg community college in West Berlin and who, as an adjunct instructor, was an important influence on local young photographers in Essen. The exhibition traces the then-new themes of colour, urbanity and youth culture. It presents the works of young German photographers like Gosbert Adler, Joachim Brohm, Volker Heinze, and Andreas Gursky before they became famous, shown alongside the American photographers they referenced in their work at the time: Stephen Shore, William Eggleston, Lee Friedlander, and Diane Arbus.

Based on the most recent studies on the materiality of photographs and photo archives, the research project understands documentary photographs as three-dimensional objects formed by historical processes that operate as repositories of sedimented knowledge in social and cultural contexts. It aims to show in a comparative investigation how the formation of methods in the humanities, the development and dissemination of photographic techniques, and the establishment of specialised photo archives in the decades before and after 1900 were mutually dependent. The focus here is on techniques and practices of scholarly work on and with photographs.

In Black and White: Photography, Race, and the Modern Impulse in Brazil at Midcentury

Conference: 2 – 3 May 2017

Call for Papers: 12 December 2016

This conference investigates Brazilian modernist photography, its relationship to race, and its place within a dynamic international network of images and ideas. From experimental work that resonates with broader postwar trends of creative photographic expression to modern forms with local and sometimes ethnic inflections, photographers were instrumental in formulating new visual languages in Brazil. Since 1939, the São Paulo-based Foto Cine Clube Bandeirante (FCCB) nurtured a wide range of avant-garde practices that anticipated many elements of Concrete Art in Brazil featured at the first São Paulo Biennial in 1951. This diverse group included photographers from immigrant communities such as São Paulo’s growing German, Jewish, Italian, and Japanese populations. These artists participated in international networks of exchange around the globe that increased their visibility and expanded their approach.

Photography and Britishness

Conference: 4 – 5 November 2016

This conference seeks to investigate the various ways in which ideas about Britain have been communicated, inflected, and contested through the photographic image. How has photography been used at “home” and “abroad” to create a variety of images of Britain and Britishness, defined as much from the outside as the inside? How do photographs mirror, reinforce, or interrupt what constitutes “Britishness,” in national, local, imperial, colonial, and postcolonial contexts? What national and regional cultures and conflicts do the constructions of British identity subsume? Can “Britishness,” indeed, have a photographic referent or is it itself an effect of representation?
